DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-20 are pending and have been examined.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 26 March 2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 9-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Independent claim 9 recites software per se as the system components are merely software (a system comprising two software modules). Software itself is non-statutory. The claims provide no hardware to implement the software.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Microsoft TechNet's, "Best Practices for Managing Applications with Process Control". The rejections are maintained as indicated by Examiner Roche in the previous office action, except as noted below.

Claims 1 and 14

Microsoft does not explicitly state dynamically managing the affinity mask for the application group by adding and removing processors from the affinity mask using priority values for the grouped install software application. Though, the reference does state dynamically managing the affinity mask for the application group by adding and removing processors from the affinity mask (page 2, third bulleted item; page 16, "Managing Affinity for Process Groups", bottom of page; "you can use the only one and first in the row CPU for the processes and then dynamically add the second CPU if needed") and assigning priority values for the grouped install software application (page 21, "Maintaining Nominal Performance for a Process Group", middle of page, "to set up normal priority for the processes and then increase the priority if needed"; page 2, fourth bulleted item).

Microsoft demonstrated that it was known at the time of invention to manage the affinity mask based upon need (page 16, "Managing Affinity for Process Groups", bottom of page; "you can use the only one and first in the row CPU for the processes and then dynamically add the second CPU if needed") and the reference indicated a desire to manipulate based upon maintaining performance criteria (page 21, section "Maintaining Nominal Performance for a Process Group"). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to manage the affinity mask of Microsoft using priority values disclosed by Microsoft's teaching. This implementation would have been obvious because one of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to provide management services based upon need and performance to the processes if highest importance or need, which is clearly indicated by priority.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Applicant's arguments filed 26 March 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant further argues registry keys are not searched. However, as Applicant states, Microsoft uses the registry which thus includes the registry keys. The rejections are therefore maintained as indicated.
